

UVM Vertical Files

13. Regional

UVM

CENTERS - Student Services Center

University of New Mexico

September 25, 1980

Albuquerque
Tribune

(Tribune photo by Dennis Dusenbery)

Model of new student service center

Members of the University of New Mexico Board of Regents listen to preliminary plans for the new $5.7 million student service center (model in foreground) to be built on campus. After hearing about the center that would house the student loan department, veterans office, and admissions and records office, the regents voted to continue on with plans for the building.

UNM plans new center

By NANCY GRIEGO
Tribune Staff Writer

The University of New Mexico Board of Regents today unanimously approved plans for a $5.7 million student service center.

The 89,000-square-foot center will be built just east of Mesa Vista Hall. Four tennis courts in the area would be eliminated to allow for additional parking spaces.

PRELIMINARY PLANS approved by the regents also call for some remodeling of Mesa Vista Hall. Its exterior will be refinished and an underground tunnel will be built to connect the two buildings.

UNM architect John Reed said the student service center would be two stories high, with an additional level underground.

It will house 11 student service division offices.

The underground level would have a storage area and mailing and assembly rooms.

The main floor would have registration offices, a student loan department, a veterans guidance office, admissions and records offices and a loading dock.

THE TOP FLOOR will house administration offices and a staff lounge.

Four of the eight tennis courts north of Johnson Gymnasium will be eliminated to make room for 78 additional parking spaces. There already are 207 spaces there.

Campus planner John McKinney said the four other courts will stay because they are over a city water reservoir "and we cannot allow parking there."

He said tennis classes will be moved to the 10 courts at Redondo Drive. Six new courts will be built at that site.

Meanwhile, UNM President William E. "Bud" Davis, in his report to the regents, said one-third of the freshmen entering the university must enroll in basic skills courses.

HE SAID THE UNIVERSITY is working with public schools to "let them know what skills are required to enter this school."

Many students aren't prepared when they enter UNM, he said, because not enough schools require them to take writing courses beyond the 10th grade.

"We hope to continue this in all schools," Davis said. "Public schools need this pressure to make teachers continue basic skills and force students to learn them."

Student
Service
Bldg.

University of New Mexico

September 25, 1980

Albuquerque
Tribune

(Tribune photo by Dennis Dusenbery)

Model of new student service center

Members of the University of New Mexico Board of Regents listen to preliminary plans for the new $5.7 million student service center (model in foreground) to be built on campus. After hearing about the center that would house the student loan department, veterans office, and admissions and records office, the regents voted to continue on with plans for the building.

UNM plans new center

By NANCY GRIEGO
Tribune Staff Writer

The University of New Mexico Board of Regents today unanimously approved plans for a $5.7 million student service center.

The 89,000-square-foot center will be built just east of Mesa Vista Hall. Four tennis courts in the area would be eliminated to allow for additional parking spaces.

PRELIMINARY PLANS approved by the regents also call for some remodeling of Mesa Vista Hall. Its exterior will be refinished and an underground tunnel will be built to connect the two buildings.

UNM architect John Reed said the student service center would be two stories high, with an additional level underground.

It will house 11 student service division offices.

The underground level would have a storage area and mailing and assembly rooms.

The main floor would have registration offices, a student loan department, a veterans guidance office, admissions and records offices and a loading dock.

THE TOP FLOOR will house administration offices and a staff lounge.

Four of the eight tennis courts north of Johnson Gymnasium will be eliminated to make room for 78 additional parking spaces. There already are 207 spaces there.

Campus planner John McKinney said the four other courts will stay because they are over a city water reservoir "and we cannot allow parking there."

He said tennis classes will be moved to the 10 courts at Redondo Drive. Six new courts will be built at that site.

Meanwhile, UNM President William E. "Bud" Davis, in his report to the regents, said one-third of the freshmen entering the university must enroll in basic skills courses.

HE SAID THE UNIVERSITY is working with public schools to "let them know what skills are required to enter this school."

Many students aren't prepared when they enter UNM, he said, because not enough schools require them to take writing courses beyond the 10th grade.

"We hope to continue this in all schools," Davis said. "Public schools need this pressure to make teachers continue basic skills and force students to learn them."

Student
Service
Bldg.